

Level the playing field in engineering

Become a GEEP mentor and inspire future engineers

The Royal Academy of Engineering's award-winning Graduate Engineering Engagement Programme (GEEP) supports engineering students and graduates from underrepresented backgrounds to transition into engineering employment.

Mentoring is a valuable part of the programme, enabling students to receive tailored 1-2-1 support from a professional in engineering industry.

Why become a mentor?

A rewarding experience sharing career guidance with a future engineer from an under-represented background

Build your communication and leadership skills

Demonstrate that you value professional development and boost your CV and applications

What's involved?

Mentoring an engineering student or recent grad to power their career path

Attending a 1.5 hour online mentor training session

Participating in six 1:1 video mentoring sessions (Nov 24 - Jun 25)

Apply by Friday
11 October

What will I do as a mentor?

The concept is simple, but the impact can be life changing. You will:

Share industry insights to guide a student's career path

Help them with interviews and applications

Share your skills, career journey and work experience

Expand their professional network

What support will I get?

Virtual 1.5 hour mentor training session to get you prepared

Benefit from tailored resources to help guide you through each session with ease

A GEEP support team who will assist you every step of the way

How does it work?

1

Join an info session for programme details, or apply directly using our brief application form when you're ready

2

Attend an online mentor training to understand your role and hear about the impact you can have as a mentor

3

Meet with your mentee once a month - a total of six video sessions from Nov 24 - Jun 25

4

Between sessions, use our messaging platform (similar to WhatsApp or email) to send messages, share resources, and arrange video sessions

What experience do I need to apply?

- Be interested in supporting under-represented students
- Willing to actively listen skills and see opportunities
- Have resiliency and unwavering commitment
- No previous experience of mentoring is required

I have found the GEEP mentoring really, really valuable. Having those meetings with my mentor, going through my CV, and figuring out my next step has opened my eyes a lot and helped me progress further into getting a career in engineering.
